

Sigma Beta Hosting Their Annual Thanksgiving Banquet
Sigma Beta Honor Society E-board Members Busying Planning

Stony Brook, NY: This month, the E-board members of Sigma Beta are busying planning their annual Thanksgiving banquet, which is coming up on the beginning of November in Sac Ballroom A of Stony Brook University. It's Sigma Beta's tradition to host the banquet every year to thanks their members for all the volunteering works they did throughout the year. The banquet is opened for everyone to come. Sigma Beta members have the priority if the amount of people reaches capacity limit.

Thanksgiving Banquet flyer from last year

During last year's Thanksgiving Banquet, Sigma Beta President Kyle Pacia said, "The money we spent on this banquet is the money we got from our members when they join the society. What's taken from the members is used for the members." Sigma Beta Events Coordinator Maya Bharatiya also said, "It was not easy to plan and set up such a big event with so few of us on E-board. It's very thankful that we have a hard-working E-board and members who volunteered to help us set up."

What to expect on the Thanksgiving Banquet:

- Semi-formal
- Food, Drink and Snack
- New friends, Photo Booth and Games
- Prize, and Sigma Beta T-shirts

About Sigma Beta: Sigma Beta is Stony Brook's own honor society. Any SBU student with less than 80 credits and above 3.5 GPA can join. With Sigma Beta, students will have countless opportunities to serve the community both on and off the college campus. By doing volunteering works, students will be able to earn "points" to become full-member and be recognized during their graduation.
